Name: _____

Loop-de-Loop

Fly in loops like a bee! Trace each loopy line from the black dot without lifting your crayon.

> 💡 For grown-ups: why it works. Tracing from left to right, staying on the soft road, trains the eye and hand to work together, the same skill used for writing. Go slowly; finger first, then pencil or crayon. Loops are the hardest path: going around and continuing is the motion behind e, l and joined handwriting later on.
